"CASE DISMISSED"

Universal One-Reel Comedy

Featuring SLIM SUMMERVILLE
and BOBBY DUNN

SLIM is the judge and Bobby is one of the jurors. All the rest are women. The first case is the trial of a female bootlegger. The judge samples the evidence and dismisses the case, saying "That's dynamite." In the next case a woman charges her husband with beating her. The jury files in after trying to find a verdict and it is evident from Bobby's condition that he has fought bravely for the defendant. He held out and the result was a disagreement. The judge tells the woman to take her husband home and not to come back before tomorrow. The last case is one wherein a donkey has badly mutilated a man who just bought him. At the request of Bobby's girl, the judge gives him a job as court bailiff and his first job is to ride the animal to prove it is not vicious. Poor Bobby gets an awful deal and the donkey gets away. In the last case Bobby is assigned the job of bringing in the wild man. He gets him in all right, after all the other cops fail, but the wild man suddenly decides to depart and he takes Bobby with him. After a long run with Bobby at the end of a rope, they get stuck on a bridge and drop below to let the train pass. The rope is cut, however, by the wheels, and they land in the car of the cops.
